Inter-Fraternity Debates Underway

"Two Affirmative and Two Negative Teams Victors in First Series of Debates"

On Monday evening, Jan. 10, at 7:30 the first series of debates for the interfraternity debating cup were held. The question was: Resolved, that intercollegiate athletics as managed at present are a menace to the welfare of our colleges.

The debate between P. I. K. and Lambda Chi was held in the large Chem. Lecture Room in Science Hall. Mr. George Alexander was chairman.

The P. I. K. team, Ward, Gagnon and Caulfield, took the affirmative side, while Irons, Townsend and Knowles defended the negative for Lambda Chi.

The decision was unanimous for P. I. K. The judges were Dr. Brown, Dr. Gilbert and Mr. Alexander.

The Delta Sigma Epsilon-Theta Chi debate took place in the Physics Lecture Room, having the same subject as the others on intercollegiate athletics. The Delta Sigma team, taking the affirmative, was composed of Clegg, Donald and Orr, Bruce, Carlson and Smith debated on the negative side for Theta Chi. Mr. Henry M. Barney was chairman and introduced the speakers.

The judges, Prof. Wales, Anderson and Beardslee, rendered a unanimous decision in favor of Delta Sigma.

The Beta Nu Epsilon-Campus Club debate was fought out in the Zoo Lecture Room, with Raymond Christopher in charge. The negative side was upheld by Beta Nu, while Campus Club supported the affirmative. The judges, Prof. Cruickshank, Hartwell and Mr. Spring, returned a unanimous decision for Beta Nu Epsilon. CRAP-SHOOTING

The president of a preparatory school had heard that a few students had violated their contract in indulging in America's favorite pastime, often referred to as crap shooting. At Chapel the next day he addressed the students. "I am told that there are five fellows who have gambled. Unless they report to me by 8:30 p. m. tonight, they will be dismissed from school immediately."

The announcement created great talk upon the campus. The boys were wondering about the punishment the president had for them. Many fellows met to decide what move to take. "Shall I tell or get dismissed?"

But none appeared to have been ready to confess. Everyone was ready to admit his mistake and to take the punishment. The president was in his office that night. Five didn't appear. There were seventy-seven!

Senior Co-eds Carry Off Court Title

Spirited Playing Marks Girls' Intra-mural Basketball

Never before has Lippitt Hall been the scene of such peppy and interesting class basketball games as has been witnessed there this year. The first game was played Tuesday by the Seniors and Juniors and was a hard fought battle. The Seniors drew first blood and except for once or twice in the fray kept the lead throughout the game. It surely was exciting when, about two minutes before the end of the contest, the score stood 24-24. However, the Senior forwards "toed the mark" and dropped the ball in the basket twice after that, the final score being 28-24.

Wednesday at 2 p. m. saw the Seniors again upon the court, this time to contest the ability of the Sophs. This was not such a hard fight and the game was an easy one for the upperclassmen. They scored first and retained the lead throughout the affair, ending with a score of 46-14.

At 3 p. m. the Juniors and Freshmen were on the floor ready for the tussle. Little did anybody think that the "Frosh" would come out victorious, but because of their agility and quickness they took the game, (Continued on Page 3)

Art Class Journeys Far To Study Old Masters

Popular Trip to Beantown Affords Excitement to "Soph" Co-Eds

Nineteen lucky members of the Sophomore class were excused from their Friday and Saturday classes in order that they might take a trip to Boston in connection with the History and Appreciation of Art course they are studying. They, together with Miss Mabel Eldred, professor of art, left Friday morning for the big city.

Such points of interest as the Fenway Court, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Boston Public Library are on the program. However, that is not the only schedule that will be followed out, for in and around Davis and South Halls there have been rumors of such things as trips to "Sonny," "Queen High" and to the Metropolitan. Even art trips have their frivolous side, it would seem.

When they return from this very "different" week-end we will all probably have that low-brow feeling when they begin to talk glibly upon such subjects as composition, color harmony, expressions, etc.

Dr. Hartwell Speaks To Aggie Club

"Trip to Underworld" Proves Interesting to Agricultural Students

At the last meeting of the Aggie Club, Dr. Bert L. Hartwell, director of the Experiment Station, addressed the club on the subject, "My Adventures With the Underworld."

Dr. Hartwell commenced by defining the underworld which he was going to discuss as the part of the earth below a person's vision. The students were then requested to take a journey into the underworld with their minds, as a journey of this sort is safer than one with their bodies.

During the "journey" Dr. Hartwell told of many interesting substances that are found in the earth when its composition is analyzed and studied. He told of the importance of the light rays from the sun and of the cycle of elements which were unimportant when in the soil, but which became very important after entering into plant life and from there into animal life.

At the conclusion of the address an informal discussion took place on the conditions of the present agricultural course at Rhode Island State College. Dr. Hartwell expressed the opinion that many more students would elect the agricultural course if they understood the full significance of such a course. It was brought out that the majority of people think that this course is a preparation for practical farm work alone, and that few people realize the varied opportunities in the fields of research and experimentation that are connected with agriculture.

Randolph Macon To Meet Local Debaters at Lippitt

Team Composed of Barney, Wright and Fine to Uphold Affirmative Side of Prohibition Question.

At last a long desired dream is to come true! Our trusty debaters are to match their forensic abilities with foemen worthy of their steel. The evening of Thursday, February 3rd will be the occasion of the first Rhode Island debate with a team from beyond the borders of New England. Due to the wonderful coaching of Professor Churchill the efforts of our teams have been crowned with repeated success, so much so, that they have outgrown their present field of endeavor and, like Alexander, are looking for new worlds to conquer.

Faculty and students alike have long felt that our teams are capable of meeting the larger colleges on equal terms. It is fitting indeed, and a real tribute to our own "Prexy" that his Alma Mater, Randolph Macon University, has been selected as (Continued on page 4)

"Frosh" and Juniors Win First Round Of Co-ed Debates

Girl Orators Show Original Thought in Inter-class Clashes

Co-eds engage in intercollegiate athletics? Yes—and no. Feminine giggles and masculine haw-haws greeted the statement "Due to the delicate feminine constitution, intercollegiate athletics would impose a severe strain on the co-eds." But most of the other arguments used in the Freshman-Sophomore Co-ed debate on the question, "Resolved, That it shall be the policy of the women of R. I. S. C. to engage in inter-collegiate athletics", were received by the audience with that attention indicative of true appreciation of a well prepared debate. And it was well prepared. The speakers had an assurance and a sincerity which, as Chairman Alexander said, was far superior to that displayed in the inter-fraternity debates.

This "Frosh"-Soph debate was held Wednesday night, January 12, in the Physics Lecture Room, and simultaneously, the Senior-Junior Co-ed debate, on the same question, was equally well given before a large audience in the Zoo Lecture Room.

The "Frosh" team, Misses Dodge, Pierce, Lee and Tew, opposed to intercollegiate, won a 2 to 1 decision of the judges, Prof. Rockerfeller, Prof. Cruickshank, and Mrs. Peppard, over the Soph team, the Misses Bowerman, Dyson, Fleming and O'Connor. Mr. Spring was timekeeper, and as such, acted as check to the flow of oratory.

THE BLACK DERBY

The black derby rested upon the shelf. Its friend, the fur coat, hung from a near-by door. A smiling freshman walked up. "Johnnie Hines!" he cried as he placed the "dip" upon his head. Another came to the fore. "The Count de Nickels," he addressed the gathering which was now in an uproar. An intelligent looking youth then appeared and put on the derby. It covered his ears.

The examination of the hat wasn't over yet. A proud senior tried too. Had he removed the "unshaven dirt" beneath his nose, he'd possibly double for the Prince of Wales. Then there came a giggling youth who went farther. He received an astounding cheer when he put on the cap. A by far greater yell greeted him when he tried the fur coat.

He was too tight to be a Scotchman and too tricky to be a Jew, so his humor placed him amongst the Irish. Three cheers for the Shamrock!

STRAYED "FROSH"

A college is a little world in itself in many ways, but it is not an abridgement of the larger world of which it is a part. One does find most of the general social crazes extraordinarily displayed in colleges; one finds the usual prejudices and tendencies, often intensified; one finds aspiration and defeat, endeavor and success. But much of the great world is only suggested, not really represented.

The best of our younger people are gathered in our colleges—there are startling exceptions: dissipation dances with profane feet, and vulgarity scrawls smutty verses on walls; cheapness and commonness there is; nevertheless the intellectual level is higher than that of society as a whole, aspiration more general, all in all, there is less human grime.

Three years ago the world mimicked the collegian—those who wore "bell-bottoms" were beyond the pale; the world sang, "Yes, we are Collegiate," talked about psychology inanely and chattered for hours on the advantages of four-plexes and doggy brogues. The world dressed as the Collegian—but the world couldn't THINK as their Beau Brummels thought; there is the difference. College is a vivid and vigorous experience; it puts a stamp on those who enter its gates. Imitation stamps are soon detected—the stamp can be acquired only first hand. It is of the Collegiate stamp that I wish to write.

The freshman is usually frightened, bewildered and confused by the new world they have entered so suddenly. Our college has devised a method to overcome this initial terror—but it has not proven successful. I refer to the "orientation exercises", which give the freshman needed information but they do not give confidence. The average professor, on these occasions, is so rigidly dignified that he scares the freshmen into awed silence. The freshman's tongue ties itself into a nervous knot; his mind is instantly washed clean of ideas; and all his plans become ridiculous in the presence of the august majesty before him. The result is that the freshman usually gets no advice because he asks no questions, and leaves the Dean's presence, conscious only of the wonder of escape. Our Freshman week is a rushed period—too brief a period for the undecided Freshman to choose his course, and get acclimated to the new environment at the same time.

I would suggest that following the orientation exercises, the freshmen that were absolutely sure of the course they want to take be allowed to take that course—and those who were undecided be given three or four days leeway. During the three or four days the deans of the various courses be allowed to make the announcement that any freshman in this undecided class is invited to privately and absolutely informally, discuss the matter of choosing his course for study. Business men employing new men interview them privately—why shouldn't the college adopt this business custom? This system would be excellent—if the professors could learn to take a little human interest in the freshman, the problem would be half-way solved. Most of them have the needed information at their finger tips, most of them are fully capable of giving the practical advice needed in order to orient the freshman into the new home, and all of them can explain the technical machinery of the college which is so confusing to every freshman.

Another item that is detrimental—the first few weeks are nearly always difficult for the freshman as fraternity rushing is coincident to the opening of college. The rushing is so wild and insistent and it demands so much time that the freshman is rarely able either to find himself properly in his strange surroundings or to get the right start in his class work.

We who are supposed to have trained minds have these unfavorable conditions existing at the outstart of our college career—there has been no practical remedy to the problem as yet—the present conditions have remained unchanged for years. Well, what are you going to do about it? Are you satisfied to wear the garb of the Collegian, speak his language, but are unwilling to do the really distinctive thing—unwilling to THINK?

What is your solution to this problem?

The Editor.

STAG DANCES

The college world has more or less considered the topic of "stag dancing." It has often been that good arguments have been spoken against it—and many in favor of it too. Stag dancing, in the opinion of many, has come down to the point of deciding whether you are a John D., Jr., or a Scotchman to the last.

The Student Council at Rutgers moved last week to double the admission price on those who preferred to stag. In that event, why not take the girl? Our neighbors, Connecticut, we understand, charge the "staggers" a special admission. These recent rulings, we are made to believe, prove

WORRYING?

Here today and gone tomorrow—
What's the use of worrying?
Life's too short for thought of sorrow,
Here today and gone tomorrow—
Pleasure bent; we'll beg or borrow
In the rush of hurrying.
Here today and gone tomorrow—
What's the use of worrying?

that the colleges disapprove of stagg-

Our Saturday dances appear in no way agreeable. It has often been the case where three times the number of boys are adoring the walls in high hopes of dancing with a girl. Frequently the problem has become so bad that the so-called "cutting" has created bad feeling. "Tap" dances are friendship strainers.

There is no doubt if a girl is well liked to be danced with, she ought to be taken to the affair by an ed. Such a decision will not only prevent stagg-

The following letter received by the subscription manager of the Beacon should prove interesting to most of us. It is as follows:

"Dear Sir:
"I am enclosing a personal check for $2 for subscription for 1926-27. Although not an alumnus of Rhode Island State College, I have enjoyed as an ex-faculty member keeping in touch with the fine progress made in that fine institution. You who are today students are to be congratulated on the progress that is being made. The recognition that is being given to Rhode Island State College is not only in the state but by educators elsewhere. Those of us who were privileged to spend four years in that beautiful spot do appreciate the opportunities afforded.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "Mabel V. Campbell."

Miss Campbell at present is situated at the University of Missouri, where she is chairman of the Home Economics Department.

Co-ed Athletics

There was a time when a girl was not well looked upon if she wore her dresses above her ankles. There also was a period when a girl was considered "fast" if she bobbed her hair. But as time has gone on, feminine dress has rapidly changed with her hold in athletics. Until within recent years intercollegiate athletics for girls were unheard of. A co-ed was usually sent to college to study—and, aye, often to marry, too!

The competition in girl athletics has proved so interesting that immense space has been given to their activities. We have read and spoken of the remarkable records of many girl teams—those of Columbia, Savage and others. Not only has it created self-pride for the co-eds but it has also earned the admiration of the public.

Co-eds at Rhode Island State haven't had much of an opportunity to prove their worth in athletics. Save for a few games at hockey, basketball or a minor sport, their only exercise is possibly received in walking to cheer our varsity toward victory. In no way do the girls play intercollegiate ball as our neighbors do.

It wouldn't be a poor policy if the co-eds could have a few basketball games arranged with nearby schools. Their playing seems impressive and it wouldn't be any surprise to see them add glory to what our boys have already won.

INTERFRATERNITY LEAGUE SCHEDULE

The 1926-1927 basketball, Interfraternity League, promises to be the most interesting in the history of its existence. The various teams this season are unusually strong and interest is running high.

The decision of the Faculty to enter a team enlargens the membership to twelve and also makes enthusiasm by far greater. Last week's attendance at the Faculty contest shows the interest that is prevailing in these matches. The schedule, as arranged by Coach Keaney, follows:

Rhode Island Overwhelms Subs

Asher Plays Whirlwind Game; Haire Runs Up High Score

The sixth straight victory proved the easiest win for Rhode Island State this season. Playing in form unseen this year, the White and Blue subdued the strong Submarine Base last Friday evening to the tune of 70-21. Coach Keaney injected not only his second team, but also the third, both of which held their opponents scoreless while they tallied the last nineteen points of their well-earned victory.

The sailors were lost after the first few minutes of play. Starting off with a rush, they swept past the Kingston basketballers for the early moments, but poor shooting prevented them from scoring to an extent. It was soon after, however, that Asher commenced a wonderful evening's work. Not only did he pass in wonderful fashion, but also did he bewilder his opponents with floor work that repeatedly drew the admiration of the crowd. Dick Barber and Hurwitz showed up splendidly.

Aside from the surprise given by the substitutes little was gained all evening. The playing of Bill Trumbull and Johnson proved the greatest treat during the affair. They passed and shot in lightning style and many of their baskets were made from difficult angles. Their playing, with that of Pykosz, was exceptionally good and the three should bear close watching for the remainder of the season.

Haire, Hurwitz and Epstein proved the leading scorers of Rhode Island, while Long and Brooks, the visitors' star guards, carried the bulk of their team's scoring. Coulter, elongated center of the visitors, played a great game during his stay in the lineup; Captain Harrington also proved an important cog in the invaders' machine.

with a score of 23-18. It was a fast and well fought game and gave the Seniors many misgivings as to the outcome of the final contest Friday which was to decide the championship.

Due to the good team work and experience the Seniors brought the game to a victorious end with a score of 23-13, winning their third game of the week and consequently the championship. The Freshmen are to be greatly commended for their fast and clever play and much is expected of them in future years.

This is the second year in succession that the class of '27 has won the cup which is offered for championship. However, it will be impossible for this class to retain it permanently, as to do this it is necessary to win three years in succession.

The remainder of the games, the Junior-Soph and the Fresh-Soph, will be played next week.

TROPHY FOR "FRAT" LEAGUE

The regular monthly meeting of the Polygon was held at Zeta Pi Alpha fraternity Monday, Jan. 10. The principal business of the evening was to discuss a trophy which the Polygon could award to the winning club in the Interfraternity Basketball League. It was finally decided that the Polygon would award a silver basketball to the team that first won the league leadership for three years, not necessarily in succession.

The meeting decided that a committee should meet with Coach Keaney to make some standard rules for the games in the league so that the awarding of the trophy should be on a strictly fair basis.

"Frosh" Easily Win First Two Games

"Frosh" Show Great Ability; Henderson and Lindstrom Do Fine Work

Opening their season Monday the "Frosh" basketball team took in Warwick High to the tune of 53-13. The high school boys never had a chance as the Freshmen started off with the vigor and flash of last year's unparalleled team. The "Frosh" displayed unexpected proficiency in handling the ball and if they continue to improve as they have they will be contenders for the laurels of last year's team.

In the game Monday Ackroyd played fine ball at the center position. Lindstrom and Henderson played good ball and seem like the logical men for the forecourt. In this game the defense had little to do and little can be said regarding the guards.

On Wednesday Barrington High was defeated 59-12. The Barrington team offered little opposition to the Freshmen, who are improving more and more as the season advances.

Although the positions are still in doubt the following men showed up to good advantage: Lindstrom and Henderson seem to have the advantage in the forecourt; Ackroyd has been doing well in the center position, while Bober, Kearns and Wiggenhouse looked pretty good in the guard positions.

The scores of both games follow:

Upsets Mark Frat League Games

The Fraternity League scored its second round with a few more upsets that have limited the number of league leaders to four with promises that a fortnight might produce a few more unexpected results. The astute Faculty team, smarting under their recent defeat, came back strong, burying the Beta Nu quintet to the score of 39-7. It was the fastest game yet played and it now seems that the Profs might capture the title. East Hall continued its winning ways in downing the formidable Delta Alpha five. It was team work that counted the greatest for the popular winners.

The big surprise of the week occurred when Theta Chi faced the strong Zeta Pi team to accept a 13-11 defeat. It was a very close affair with the result in doubt to the very last minute when Harrington scored two fouls that proved the margin of victory.

Delta Sigma Epsilon took things rather easy in their win over the P. I. K. organization and Phi Sigma also ran true to predictions when it won over the Campus Club, league champions two seasons ago.

Glee Club Concert Held at Wakefield

Songs and Specialties Find Great Favor

The Glee Club held its first concert of the year at the Wakefield Opera House Friday night, the 14th. The least that could be said of the entertainment is that it was a success. The work of the leaders, D. R. Kinzie, the student leader, R. C. Holt, manager, and the newly elected assistant managers, M. H. Conn and A. M. Anderson, was well rewarded.

The new additions were very successful, especially the Hawaiian Troupe which was enthusiastically encored several times. J. B. Dow made a decided impression on the audience both with his vocal rendition of "Black Bottom" with the Hawaiians and his Scotch songs with Keach's accompaniment on the piano. One of the best numbers on the program was the group of solos rendered by Herbert Rosefield, which included a classical and a popular song. The most novel act was unquestionably the clog dance given by A. Savestano. The clarinet trio announced as "The Three Clarinetters" made their first appearance on the club program and will be associated with the club the rest of the season.

The chorus made an appearance which is very encouraging in regard to the outcome of the coming Intercollegiate Glee Club contest in Boston. It gave a fine interpretation of "The Border Ballad," the opening number, and was as well received in the rest of its pieces.

A dance until one o'clock followed the entertainment with the Original Collegians furnishing the music.

The personnel of the entertainment was as follows:

Chorus—Tenors: Erickson, Rosefield, Conklin, Dow, Irons, B. Fine, D. Fine, Anderson, Shoesmith, Armbrust, Cook, Anderson and Savage. Basses: Bornside, Miner, Adams, Sweeney, Slavitsky, Mactaz, Conn, Kinzie, Anderberg, Davis, Dunn, Fitts, Carroll, Doyle and Bruce.

Hawaiians—Nahigian, Coon, Pratt and Abbenante.

Vocal Quartet—Conklin, Rosefield, Dow and Anderburg.

Clarinetters—Fine, Morgan and Bunce.

Manager—Holt. Assistant Managers—Conn and Anderson.

Door Committee—Doyle.

The program:

I Chorus (a) Border Ballad (b) The Clock; II Hawaiian Jazz Troupe (a) They're Wearing Them Higher to Hawaii (b) Black Bottom; III Herbert Rosefield, tenor (a) Cashmiri Song (b) Moonlight on the Ganges; IV Chorus (a) John Peel (b) The Jolly Blacksmith; V Dow and Keach, Scotch Novelty (a)

INTER-FRAT DEBATE

this winning team consisted of Maurice Conn, David Fine, Benjamin Fine and Hyman Hochman. The members of the Campus Club were Priestly, Murphy and Hunter.

Howard Miller acted as time-keeper.

Zeta Pi Alpha won its debate in the interfraternity contest through forfeiture. The Delta Alpha Psi team was not present at the regulated hour and then sent a message that they would forfeit the debate.

The next series of debates will be held shortly, it was announced by President Barney of the Debating Society. This is the elimination debates for the debating trophy awarded to the champion fraternity. This cup is held at present by Beta Phi, and must be won by her for two consecutive more years in order to remain in that fraternity's permanent possession.

RANDOLPH MACON TEAM TO DEBATE

our first opponent under the new policy. The Randolph Macon team comes to us while on their tour of New England and will possess a familiarity with their subject born of repeated discussion. Rhode Island's premiere team, composed of Barney, Wright and Fine will ably uphold the affirmative proposition that, "The Federal Constitution should be so amended as to legalize the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer."

The importance of the subject, the fact that this debate is in itself an innovation, the promise of lively competition, and because of our natural interest in the representatives of the Alma Mater of our president, all tend to make this the best debate in which Rhode Island State teams have ever taken part. It will be a real inter-sectional contest; the soft Southern drawl versus the New England nasal twang!

Another team of the South, that of the University of Gettysburg, is being considered as a future opponent, but arrangements have not yet been completed.

Roaming in the Gloaming (b) It's Nice to Get Up in the Morning; VI Hawaiian Four (a) Hilo (b) Mary Lou; VII Chorus (a) The Bells of St. Mary's (b) We're Ready; VIII Savestano, Waltz Clog; IX Quartet, Sweet and Low; X Kinzie, bass, Bells of the Sea; XI Savestano, Buck and Wing Dance; XII Clarinetters (a) Greeting to Bangor (b) Flower Song, Fine (c) Elsie Shultzenheim.

Pitt Parker Presents Pleasant Program

Cartooning, Landscape Drawings and Clay Modeling Please Audience

Last Thursday the students of R. I. S. C. well received the program by Pitt Parker, famous platform cartoonist. All through the evening the audience roared at the witty remarks of the artist, who appeared on the Lecture Association program.

The first drawing Mr. Parker made was that of a rather obese Dutchman. From the first few lines he made, the drawing appeared to be a slim man, but the last curve built a beautiful pot and drew a number of laughs from the audience. Next came a description of curves. Mr. Parker proved, in a most decisive way, how fascinating curves could be. It was here he recited a poem about "The Village Smith Girl" a la Longfellow. To compare the modern girl with the old-fashioned one, he drew mother and grandmother. (No, Johnny, that was a bustle!)

Mr. Parker then drew in colors a sunrise with a cave-man in the foreground praying to the dawning of the day. The weird effect of the blackened form of the cave-man against the flaming background drew much applause from the audience. Later in the evening Mr. Parker drew two more colored pictures, one a lake surrounded by cliffs, the other Mount Ranier of Tacoma.

Although Pitt Parker is advertised as an artist he is also a poet for he recited an original poem about his dog "Spot." After the poetic outburst he had some students place five dots on a paper. He then drew a man so his hands, feet and head each touched a point.

Then came the clay modeling. After a few minutes of mud slinging, Mr. Parker began to model faces. First he made a negro's face, then a Chinaman's, then a Jap's, then an Irishman's and finally a Jew's. The most surprising part of the performance was the fact that he made a Jew out of an Irishman with only 28 slaps.

Mr. Parker concluded his program with a drawing of Mount Ranier. After he had finished there was a grand rush for the colored pictures, but in vain; Prof. Ince had made reservations for himself.

CO-ED DEBATES

A topical summation of the affirmative arguments: Offers incentive to coming out for team, creates school spirit, liked by public and students, benefits some by giving them managership training, works well at many other colleges, gives contacts with other women, helps intramural athletics. Miss Flenning of the Sophs gave an interesting tabulation of the non-athletic activities of last year's team: 2 were heads of houses, 2 were on honor roll, 4 were in Pan Hellenic Association, 1 was on Beacon Board, 1 on Grist Board, 1 was president of YWCA, and 1 was an active varsity debater.

Many of the negative arguments applied only to conditions at R. I. S. C., as for instance, insufficient equipment, insufficient time for practice due to male occupancy of gym, scarcity of varsity games, for only one, Brown, is scheduled. Then there were general reasons, among which were: Nervous and physical strain (which fact Mrs. Keaney is quoted as denying), expense, distortion of minds to athletics as the only thing worth while, creation of feuds between colleges.

A new publication appeared upon the campus last week. This was the "Beta Nuse," a ten-page magazine, published by Beta Nu Epsilon Fraternity.

Zeta Pi Alpha celebrated one of its best social functions of the year when it held its house dance Saturday evening. A large crowd was present and every one was enjoying himself—and herself—thoroughly.
